Introduction

Since July 7, 2007, the IELTS have spoken on the half-point scale. Officially released the news after numerous students in my blog or class to consult me and asked me which is good news for interest bad news. In fact, half the points system is no change in the standard of oral score. Change is for the examiner, they have more subjective selectivity. IELTS listening to, say, read, write, advertised on the principle of the four subjects are professional academic camp, absolute objectivity in respect of speaking and writing was not a fixed standard answer, up to a so-called Reference the answer. So, the oral exam, how to impress the examiner within ten minutes has become an imminent problem (the burning question).
